

Today we had a class together with the other group of hci in which we had to present our proposition to the whole class, we were given some post it's, based on the color of them someone will have to write the general idea of the proposition and its complications it may have, the presentations were short, only 3 minutes, ours was kinda bad because of the time being a worrying factor in our head.